Beneficial Properties of Olives

Olives are one of the world's most widely enjoyed food.

Not only is their taste delicious but they also have a huge number of health benefits.

Their nutritional aspects go far beyond what one might expect, discovered centuries ago throughout the Mediterranean region where the olive tree first grew.

Our Olives

- They reduce cholesterol levels in your blood.
- They limit blood pressure fluctuations.
- They are an amazing source of dietary fibers, as an alternative to fruit and vegetables.
- They are a great source of vitamin E.
- They act as anti-oxidants and protect the cells.
- They reduce the effects of degenerative diseases, such as Alzheimer's, benign and malignant tumors, including varicose veins.
- They help prevent blood clots that could lead to myocardial infarction or deep vein thrombosis.
- They protect cell membranes against diseases, such as cancer.
- They protect against anaemia (iron deficiency).
- They enhance fertility and the reproductive system.
- They play an important role in maintaining a healthy immune system, especially during oxidative stress and chronic viral diseases.
- There is also ample proof that olives are an aphrodisiac!
- They are nutritious and rich in mineral content, such as sodium, potassium, magnesium, iron, phosphorus and iodine.
- They provide essential vitamins and amino-acids.
- They contain oleic acid, which has beneficial properties to protect the heart.
- They contain polyphenols, a natural chemical substance that reduces oxidative stress in the brain. Thus, eating a daily serving of olives improves memory by 25%.
- A single cup of olives is a great source of iron (4.4 mg).
- Eating olives may reduce the appearance of wrinkles by 20%, since they contain oleic acid, which keeps the skin soft and healthy.
- By eating just 10 olives before each meal, you can reduce your appetite by 20%. This is due to the fact that monounsaturated fatty acids contained in olives slow down the digestive process and increase cholecystokinin, a hormone that sends messages of fullness to the brain.
- Moreover, these acids also stimulate the production of adiponectin, a chemical that burns fat for up to five hours after consumption.
